The Farallon Islands near San Francisco are the seasonal home to a group of great white sharks. Their favorite foods--pinnipeds--find a haven in the islands. This nonfiction narrative is interspersed with information based on the author's observations and studies at the carefully protected National Wildlife Refuge where scientists follow their feeding and behavior.

Lesson Ideas

Primary:

Introduction to life cycles unit: Have students browse a variety of books on Great White Sharks, comparing text features, and discussing what a life cycle is.

Students can then go on to research a life cycle/eco system of an animal of their choice.
