ACRL-WA & OR Joint Conference - Early Bird Rate Ends Today

ACRL-WA & OR will be holding their joint Fall conference in-person and online Friday, Oct. 27 from 8 am - 5 pm at Lower Columbia College in Longview, WA. Today is the last day for Early Bird registration.

The conference theme is The Work of Libraries. People, and their labor, are the core of academic libraries. This work can be exciting, monotonous, high stakes, invisible, precarious, invigorating, and exhausting. Like other forms of labor, work in academic libraries has changed dramatically since the advent of the pandemic, and continues to change.

Learn more about the conference here and view the tentative program schedule here.

For questions, please email info@wla.org or call/text (206) 823-1138.

Call for Papers: Libraries, Disrupted

Alki's Winter issue submission window is now open! You voted and we listened! Alki thanks everyone who offered ideas and voted in our surveys for the December theme.

Consider the following ideas while you work on your articles:

- Politics pit us against them. How do you and your library handle the negativity? What do you do to combat anti-library rhetoric? Tell us about your community.
- Change is inevitable and–good or bad–it disrupts the routine. What disruptions do you encounter in your library?

Creative pieces, art, and photos are always encouraged.

Sign up for your spot today by emailing your name, a working title of your proposed piece, your bio, and a headshot to alkieditor@wla.org.

Do you have an article ready? Email your submissions as a .doc, .docx, or Google Doc to alkieditor@wla.org before Tuesday, Oct. 17. Be sure to include each of the following in your submission:

- Article title
- Author name(s) and affiliation(s)
- Short bio written in third-person, and headshot of author(s)
- Any citations are in Chicago Manual of Style
- Images in .jpg or .png format with both captions and alt-text
- Chosen quotes or short selections of your article that you would like highlighted as pull-quotes

WLA's ALA Councilor Steven Bailey holds monthly office hours to meet with you about your ALA questions or just say hello! Typically held on third Wednesdays, this month's office hours have been rescheduled to today, September 27, 1:00-2:00 pm.

 Save the following Zoom link — or log-in to the WLA website to access meeting information on the Meeting & Events calendar.

The Washington Library Association (WLA) is a Chapter Affiliate Member of the American Library Association (ALA). ALA has affiliate relationships — a longtime partnership — with state library associations (chapters) in all fifty States, the District of Columbia, Guam, the U.S. Virgin Islands, and regional library associations in the Mountain Plains, New England, Pacific Northwest, and Southeastern regions.

Chapters promote general library service and librarianship within its geographic area, provide geographic representation to the Council of the American Library Association, and cooperate in the promotion of general and joint enterprises with the American Library Association and other library groups.

IMLS Nourishing Minds Initiative

Is teen mental health something you are thinking about? Would you like to gain skills in building positive teen well-being? As a part of the MLS-funded Nourishing Minds initiative, The Seattle Public Library is seeking six U.S. public libraries to participate in a series of activities over the next year that will give library staff the opportunity to:

- Build strategies for proactively creating services in support of teen mental health
- Move away from a crisis approach to teen mental health
- Attend a series of participatory design training sessions and build skills in support of teen mental health
- Receive coaching from Meridian Library District (ID) and Charles County
 Public Library (MD) staff
- Facilitate a programming series in support of teen mental health and library space that support teen mental health

Those selected to participate will receive a $6000 stipend to use in support of learning about and providing services in support of teen mental health.

Onboarding of selected library staff begins in November 2023, learning sessions for selected staff will begin in early 2024, and libraries selected will facilitate their mental health centered programs from February through July 2024.

You can apply to participate in the initiative by filling out and submitting this form. To learn more check out the FAQ and register for an information session on Wednesday, October 4, noon to 1PM Pacific

King County Library System receives $133,252 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities to develop a Climate Action Plan

ISSAQUAH, WASH. — September 26, 2023 — The King County Library

System (KCLS) received a $133,252 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) to develop a Climate Action Plan over the next two years under the Climate Smart Humanities Organizations program. The KCLS

Foundation will match the amount that NEH awarded by July 2024, for a total of $266,504 in grant funding.

NEH supports research, education, preservation and public programs in the humanities. The Climate Smart program is one of three new grant programs that NEH created under the agency's American Tapestry: Weaving Together Past, Present and Future initiative, which leverages the humanities to strengthen our democracy, advance equity for all and address our changing climate. The program enables cultural organizations — such as museums, libraries, archives and humanities centers — to develop strategic Climate Action Plans.

In this round of funding, NEH awarded $41.3 million in grants for 280 humanities projects across the country. KCLS was the only library system in the nation to receive the NEH grant to produce a Climate Action Plan.

"The NEH grant funds will help KCLS do its part to preserve and protect the environment for current and future generations to come," said KCLS Executive Director Lisa Rosenblum. "We look forward to establishing and implementing our Climate Action Plan to further improve energy efficiency and reduce our carbon footprint."

The Climate Action Plan will align with federal, tribal, state, and local climate goals and priorities. KCLS will work with technical consultants to assess current greenhouse gas emissions, water and energy usage, and establish a measurable plan to implement conservation strategies.

Latest milestone for project "GLAM" Assists Cultural Heritage Institutions
Protect their Valuable Collections from Storms, Climate Change, and Other Risk Factors.

BATON ROUGE – Cultural heritage institutions, including galleries, libraries, archives and museums, or GLAMs, are being impacted by climate change. About 56 percent of these institutions reported increased damage to collections due to water or moisture between 2017-2019. Of that damage, about 10 percent was the result of natural disasters. As storm season ramps up in the south, LSU researchers reached a significant milestone in a research project aimed at assisting our nation's historical/natural/scientific/cultural collections remain safe and intact.

Over the past year, the collaborative Providing Risk of The Environment's

Changing Climate Threats for Galleries, Libraries, Archives & Museums

(PROTECCT-GLAM) research team compiled and verified a unique dataset, including the georeferences for the majority of U.S. Galleries, Libraries, Archives and Museums (GLAMs). The original data sources included the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS), the National Center for Education Statistics, the Archives RepoData project, and the Department of Defense.

After compiling the source data, the PROTECCT-GLAM project team employed over 35 undergraduate and graduate students to manually verify and update physical location of the GLAMs. The resulting dataset includes nearly 74,000 entries and represents the first known directory of all U.S. GLAM locations. The dataset is freely available for use via the LSU Digital Commons and accessible on the project website: http://protecct-glam.lsu.edu. The PROTECCT-GLAM team also provided access to a form for GLAMs to submit feedback and revisions to the dataset which will be updated monthly through 2024 and quarterly thereafter.

Cultivating Critical & Curious Consumers & Creators: A Workshop Series on Tools for Teaching Media Literacy to Children & Teens

Various Wednesdays starting October 4th: 5:00-6:30 p.m.

Register HERE

More information HERE

Everyone in our communities lives in a technology and media steeped world. Because of this, Media Literacy & Digital Citizenship are vital content areas that are being integrated into classrooms all over the country. In Washington, OSPI has a Media Literacy & Digital Citizenship coordinator who works towards giving school staff the resources and skills they need to incorporate these skills into their lessons.

In this professional development series, you will gain essential knowledge of Media Literacy & Digital Literacy practices, hear from experts in the field, learn about specific curriculum and existing tools, become more in tune with what is happening in Washington schools, and connect with other public and school library folks. Let's work together to help create a community of critical thinkers who use technology in ways that are safe, responsible, ethical, and kind.

This series of free Clock Hours eligible workshops is open to all Washington State K-12 educators and any public librarians who work with children and teens. Each session will be held on Zoom, on a Wednesday from 5:00 to 6:30 p.m., during the 2023-2024 school year. (See specific dates and presenters here).

Each session will include an in-depth presentation from a guest speaker, as well as time to process and interact with job-alike peers in breakout rooms. The series is co-sponsored by the Washington State Library and the Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction Media Literacy & Digital Citizenship
Program.

Authors and Advocates on Fighting Book Bans

The last few years have seen an unparalleled attack on the right to read and organized campaigns against certain types of literature and programming in public and school libraries. No one person or organization can face this fight alone, and we all need to take direct action to combat censorship.

Join author John Green (Looking for Alaska, The Fault in Our Stars), writer and illustrator Mike Curato (Flamer), librarian and FReadom Fighters co-founder Becky Calzada, and Banned Books Week Youth Honorary Chair Da'Taeveyon Daniels for a conversation the impact of book bans and the ways in which they have taken action to fight censorship. The program will close with a short Q&A. Presented by the ALA Office for Intellectual Freedom and Unite Against Book Bans.

This webinar will be held on Oct 4, 2023 10 am PT. Register here.

Do you dread evaluation planning? Join this webinar for a walk through of Six Simple Steps for Evaluation Planning. This webinar will teach you how to develop an evaluation plan that's effective and won't stress you out. We will break down the steps and provide a draft plan you can use to help you feel empowered and ready to get started collecting the evidence you need to demonstrate results. Grab your notebook and join Dr. Ann Price for this free webinar.

This webinar will be held on September 28, 10 am PT. Register here.
