Application open for the 2023 Conference Committee
Apply for the 2023 Conference Committee!

WLA is seeking volunteers for its 2023 Conference Committee! Whether you’re new to WLA or a longtime volunteer, we would love for you to get involved!

Please complete the application form today, June 8, 2022.

Committee members should:
- Participate in the meetings and activities of the committee.
- Have an interest in the work of the committee.
- Be a WLA Member

The committee will meet once per month and as needed, with email communication in-between. Appointment on the committee will run July 11, 2022 through April 1, 2023.

The 2023 WLA Conference will take place in Wenatchee, WA from Thursday, March 30 through Saturday, April 1, 2023, and committee members will receive a discount on their registration to attend!

If you have any questions, please reach out to the WLA Office by emailing info@wla.org or calling/texting (206) 823-1138.

Get Involved with the School Library Division!

If you’re a member of the School Library Division (ScLD) and are looking for more ways to become involved in WLA, the ScLD steering committee wants to hear from YOU!

Tell us about your interests and availability in this Google form. The form does not commit you to a specific role; it will simply help the committee match your interests with volunteer opportunities!

If you have any questions, please reach out to the WLA Office by emailing info@wla.org. You can also contact the members of the ScLD steering committee at wla.org/contact-scld.
New Special Libraries Crawl Recording Available

The Washington Library Association's Special Library Division and the Special Library Association’s PNW Chapter (SLA PNW) have once again teamed up to present a series of informational events to help our members learn more about special libraries in our region: The 2022 Special Libraries Crawl.

The first of the 2022 series was presented Friday, June 3 and introduced attendees to the world of Zine Libraries, with virtual tours of the Olympia Timberland Library's Zine Library, The Seattle Public Library's ZAPP Collection, and the Collins Library Zine Collection at the University of Puget Sound.

Interested in learning more about other special libraries? Check out the Special Libraries Crawl Archive, which covered law libraries, art libraries, and tribal libraries!

News & Notes

Participate in ALA Survey on Library Programs, Partnerships

ALA's Public Programs Office (PPO) is partnering with Knology, a nonprofit research organization, to develop impact indicators for library programming and explore library partnerships, as part of IMLS grant LG-250153-OLS-21.

As part of this research, all libraries are invited to participate in a short, 15-minute survey, accessible at https://research.knology.org/jfe/form/SV_23t3S9VfBARvjKu. Participants will be invited to provide contact information if they are interested in a follow-up interview or focus group discussion at the conclusion of the survey.

Please note that the survey will ask for information about library / library system, including service population size, staff size, operating budget, and open hours.

If you have any questions regarding the survey, please contact Joanna Laursen Brucker at Knology.

Call for Papers: The Future of Peer-led Research Services: Reference Services Review Special Issue

The COVID-19 pandemic has disrupted traditional service models in academic libraries. However, out of those disruptions emerged innovation, reconceptualization, and shifts in how and who delivers front-line services. Often out of necessity, libraries and information organizations have increasingly turned to student employees to maintain critical service points in physical and virtual spaces. This special issue of Reference Services Review (RSR) will explore how peer-led research services have evolved and what opportunities the future may hold for peer research support.
RSR seeks articles for Volume 51 Issue 2 – a special issue on peer-led research services. Topics may include innovations in program development or justification, training and onboarding, analysis of the day-to-day management, assessment, and evaluation, and forecasting of how these programs may continue to evolve. Peer-led research services may occur at many levels and in many contexts, including, but not limited to in-person, virtual, or hybrid research services; undergraduate or graduate levels; work-study programs or specially-funded internships/positions; general or specialized research support; and general or special collections.

Distinct types of papers are welcome for submission, including the following –

- Research
  - Empirical studies, quantitative studies, qualitative studies, mixed-methods, and multi-methods
  - Broad studies of multiple programs/initiatives that have proven successful in both in-person, remote, and/or hybrid environments

- Longitudinal studies
  - Studies that explore the design, implementation, and impact of student-led peer research programs

- Viewpoint or conceptual paper
  - Reflections on key terms and core concepts, i.e., the history of peer-led research programs and their development
  - Reflections on the transition from librarian-led to peer-led research support
  - Reflections on improving engagement by creating a peer-supported environment

- Case study
  - Studies that explore the transition to peer-led research support service models
  - Studies that focus on practices toward training, onboarding, and providing professional formation to student consultants
  - Studies that focus on advancing diversity, equity, inclusion, and anti-racism through peer-led support services
  - Studies that focus on the assessment of peer-led support service models
  - Studies that focus on peer-led information literacy training
  - Studies that focus on the work that library/archive associations and/or library consortia are doing in this space
  - Studies that focus on professional formation, and specifically on the work library staff are doing to support the growth of student employees

- Literature review
  - Annotation and/or critique of the literature on practices for peer-led research services
  - Annotation and/or critique of peer-led research service models – either in-person, virtual synchronous, or virtual asynchronous
  - Overview or examination of ongoing mentoring for student consultants within professional development opportunities

Topic proposals should be submitted via the web form at: https://forms.gle/GFMucqN9AMAbkDjJ64. Examples of previous special issues can be found in RSR issues: https://www.emerald.com/insight/publication/issn/0090-732.

The abstract submission deadline is June 26, 2022, with acceptance notification occurring July 19, 2022. Anticipated publication date for the special issue is June

NNLM Region 5 Announces New Funding Opportunities

The Network of the National Library of Medicine (NNLM) Region 5 is pleased to announce new funding opportunities for Data Engagement Awards and Outreach & Engagement Awards! Applications submitted by 5:00 p.m. PT, June 28 will receive first consideration.

These awards are for those in Region 5 which includes Alaska, California, Hawaii, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, and the U.S. Territories and Freely Associated States in the Pacific.

- At minimum, three Data Engagement Awards for up to $25,000 each will be funded to support engagement in data literacy, data science or data management, such as through projects that support biomedical and research data services; help train the healthcare, library or educator workforce to access, understand, and use data; or create diverse community connections to further educate a wide audience on data literacy and management best practices.

- Additionally, at least three Outreach & Engagement Awards for up to $25,000 each will be funded to improve health literacy and increase health equity through engagement and training for health information, digital literacy skills, and access to trusted health information in under-resourced communities. The award also supports the purchase of technology needed to advance connectivity.
The Learning Curve

ACRL Live Webcast: "Cognitive Load and Instructional Design"

The next ACRL Core Webinar "Cognitive Load and Instructional Design" takes place June 9 from 11 a.m.-12 p.m. PT. Register in advance! Cost is $50 for ACRL members, $71 for ALA members, and $79 for non-members.

In this interactive webinar Jason Puckett, Online Learning Librarian and Associate Professor (Georgia State University Library) will demonstrate easy, non-technical best practices in instructional design that will help your information literacy teaching in any medium.

Attendees of the webinar will learn how to help their students learn more efficiently by reducing the cognitive load — the amount of mental effort — taken up by extraneous information and poor design. Academic instruction librarians will find the webinar most useful, but any teaching librarians will be able to use the content and ideas.

If you have a question or need to make arrangements for special assistance or additional accessibility, contact Mia Blixt-Shehan at mblixtshehan@ala.org.

OrRS: "Let's Ask More Questions!: Virtual Reference as a Conversation"

The Oregon Reference Summit (OrRS) will host a free online session "Let's Ask More Questions!: Virtual Reference as a Conversation" on June 10 from 1-2 p.m. PT, as part of its series of bi-monthly programs. Register in advance!

Presenter Andrea Marshall (Oregon State University) will discuss ways for librarians to ask their communities crucial questions during various types of online chat reference interviews that foster collaboration and creative thinking.

If you have any questions, please contact Sandra Dixon or Lori Moore.

Niche Academy: "Fun For All: Game-Based Programming Across the Generations"

Join Niche Academy on June 15 at 11 a.m. PT for this 60-minute webinar, based on the new book Librarian’s Guide to Games and Gamers.
Authors and librarians Michelle Goodridge and Matthew Rohweder will provide tips and tactics to establish a variety of game-based programming in libraries. Participants will leave having ideas for cross-generational and specific user group programming suggestions outside of the perceived core game user group. [Register in advance.]

Registrants will receive a recording of the webinar if they are not able to attend the live webinar.

Fast Forward Libraries: "Continuous Improvement Trumps Strategy: How to Become a Learning Organization"

Just having a strategic plan doesn’t guarantee success! Many strategic plans are never ending “to do” lists that don’t articulate progress or impact. Shift your library by developing a meaningful, aspirational plan supported by learning-focused implementation and management tools in this free webinar on June 21 at 10 a.m. PT. [Register in advance.]

Presenters Amanda Standerfer (Fast Forward Libraries) and Gerry Vogel (Avon Lake Public Library) will discuss how you can ground your library’s plan in systems thinking and learning organization practices. Creating a living plan that’s adaptive and responsive from the inside out will help your library and community learn and grow together!

Originally presented at the Public Library Association Conference, this webinar includes practical "how to" examples for your library. If you have any questions, please contact amanda@standerferconsulting.com.
